Event Profile

med.Logistica is the major meeting place for the hospital logistics sector in the German-speaking world. The congress and accompanying specialist exhibition covers the entire range of topics relating to process optimisation in hospitals – from procurement and internal personnel, materials and information flow to waste disposal. The congress programme covers all aspects of hospital logistics, based on actual examples of good practice. The event is aimed at directors and senior managers of hospitals, insurance companies and other funding agencies, together with their subsidiary service facilities, as well as at heads of logistics, purchasing, business and administration departments. It also addresses the interests of managerial staff responsible for surgical departments, central sterile supply departments (CSSD), for IT, nursing care, pharmacies and technology, as well as those of hospital architects and planners, together, too, with representatives of industry from Germany, Austria and Switzerland.

In 2017, med.Logistica received the Leipzig Award for Hospital Logistics – a first ever innovation award in this sector - in honour of the contribution to innovative ideas for process optimisation in hospital logistics. And to recognise the contribution of graduands, specialising in process optimisation in the healthcare service, a prize for the best thesis was also awarded for the first time.
