Event Profile

LIPSIA, Europe's largest pedigree poultry show, has been held at the Leipzig Fair and Exhibition Centre since 1999. In 2013, the Leipzig Pedigree Poultry Association 1869 (Leipziger Rassegeflügelzüchterverein 1869 e. V.) is organising the show for the 117th time. One of the reasons for the great success of LIPSIA is the fact that Saxony and Thuringia have traditionally been major centres for breeding pedigree poultry.

Every year, breeders from all over Europe present the results of their work. And, on top of that, there are always a number of young breeders with their animals. Interest among visitors goes way beyond the borders of Europe and the show frequently welcomes visitors from Arabia, Africa, Japan and other countries.

What makes the pedigree poultry show particularly appealing is its enormous range and variety and the most diverse breeds in all possible colours are on display. The show is complemented by lectures covering various aspects of pedigree poultry breeding. Additionally LIPSIA is accompanied by an industrial exhibition, where equipment and products for rearing, caring for and feeding small animals are showcased.
