Event profile

The International Trade Fair for Museum and Exhibition Technology, MUTEC, is targeted to experts, decision makers and investors from museums, collections, exhibition centres, galleries, cultural institutions and businesses, architectural offices, consulting agencies, the creative sector, municipal administrative offices, the educational sector, trusts, associations, institutions and organisations for art, culture and historic preservation, as well as archives and libraries.

2018 will be the fifth time that MUTEC takes place in parallel with denkmal, Europe's leading trade fair for conservation, restoration and old building renovation.

Together, denkmal and MUTEC will once again serve as the leading international platform for the preservation and communication of cultural heritage.

Thanks to its exhibition profile, MUTEC offers inspiration across various sectors for museums, libraries, archives and other cultural fields. MUTEC will provide an overview of state-of-the-art techniques, creative events and inspiration for mastering the fundamental tasks of any cultural institution – collecting, preserving, researching and communicating cultural assets.

The focus of the international trade fair will be on museum technology, exhibition design, visitor services, media presentation and museum infrastructure, with the areas of archiving and digitisation becoming ever more important.

In its professional programme, MUTEC shines a light on some exciting present and future challenges for museums and other cultural businesses, as well as for archives and libraries.
